The Flame

The Claremont Graduate University flame comes from the seal of the Claremont University Center and Graduate School, which was founded in 1925. The Latin words on the seal Multa lumina lux una refer to the “many lamps” of The Claremont Colleges and their collective commitment to “one light” in the common search for wisdom and truth.

As Claremont Graduate University nears its centennial, the flame is brighter than ever and reminds us of our purpose as an institution devoted to the highest academic ideals. First, the flame continues to represent the light that guides the quest for truth, understanding, and wisdom—not simply the discovery and dissemination of new information, but the creation of knowledge to make the world a better place. Second, the flame stands for the energy that inspires our efforts and renews our spirits as we work together as a community to continue the great conversation about learning and teaching. Third, the flame symbolizes the heat that burns through falsehood and bigotry to seal our commitment to liberty, justice, and peace for all. And fourth, the flame stands as a beacon on a distant shore, calling to those who seek ways to realize their full potential and make a meaningful contribution to the world.

Like all fires, the Claremont Graduate University flame requires careful tending and constant renewal. Each of us who works here and who shares in the ideals of this special community must become a keeper of the flame to ensure its strength in the years ahead.

CGU Professor Emeritus of Education and Psychology

TODAY'S COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

The Claremont Graduate University community extends cordial greetings to parents, spouses, relatives, and friends gathered here for this joyous event. For graduating students, today's ceremony recognizes their academic achievements at Claremont Graduate University and inaugurates a new era in their careers. We hope you will find these ceremonies—a culmination of the efforts of students and their families as well as faculty and staff—both meaningful and impressive.

The exercises begin with an academic procession. The procession is headed by the candidates' marshals, followed by candidates for graduation, the university mace party, representatives of the university's faculties, deans, Board of Trustees, as well as distinguished guests, and the university president.

In recognition of the diverse faiths represented at the university and our community, Claremont Graduate University's tradition is to invite one member of The Claremont College's Chaplains to deliver the Invocation. This invitation is extended on a rotating basis to all of the four Chaplains as part of our commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion.

Please assist us in making today's ceremony enjoyable by keeping the aisles clear at all times.

We hope you will be able to join the graduates at one of the celebratory receptions following the commencement exercises. Welcome to Claremont Graduate University's Ninety-Seventh Annual Commencement Ceremony.

COMMENCEMENT MISSION STATEMENT AND PURPOSE

Commencement at Claremont Graduate University represents the culmination of a student's academic achievement. It is a time for celebration and reflection for students, families, faculty, and staff. It brings together a diverse community to share in the joy of the accomplished goals of students.

The commencement ceremony at Claremont Graduate University serves a dual purpose: to mark a significant accomplishment, thus completing a chapter in the lives of students and those who support them; and to encourage the continued pursuit of education and personal fulfillment.

THE UNIVERSITY MACE AND PRESIDENTIAL MEDALLION

The civic, or ceremonial, mace is thought to date from about the 13th century, and the Claremont Graduate University mace was designed and constructed in 1984 by John S. Temple, an MFA student, who used native California hardwoods exclusively in its construction. The sculptural interpretation of the flame is handcarved from mesquite wood and depicts the flame of learning in the Claremont Graduate University logo. The remaining elements in the mace are of lathe-turned claro walnut and black walnut. Six claro walnut rods, symbolizing each of the then-six Claremont Colleges, are symmetrically arranged to form the main body of the mace and are joined together at the ends with turned forms of black walnut. The entire mace is assembled with dowels; no metal fasteners are used. A special formula of beeswax and oil has been used to finish the mace and protect it for years to come.

The university mace is carried in procession on occasions of outstanding importance, such as commencements, convocations, and formal dedications. The placement of the mace on its stand signals that the proceedings are about to come to order; its retirement indicates the conclusion of the exercises. The mace is carried in procession by the chief marshal.

The presidential medallion is worn by the president at formal academic occasions. The medallion identifies its wearer as the temporary embodiment of the institution's power and authority. Claremont Graduate University's presidential medallion is a bronze casting of the university's seal. This symbol, designed according to the science of heraldry, consists of a shield containing three lamps and one flame, surrounded by the name of our institution and its founding date, 1925. The gift of the medallion with the linked bronze chain of office was commissioned in 1998 by the presidential candidate search committee.

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The academic costumes worn in the procession at today's ceremony trace their origins to those worn by faculty and students at medieval European universities. With minor modifications, these costumes have remained largely unchanged since the 16th century. Regalia standards for colleges and universities in the United States were established in 1895 with the adoption of an intercollegiate code that specifies design and color appropriate for various degrees.

The modern academic costume consists of three parts: the gown or robe, a headpiece, and a hood. The gown denotes the wearer's level of education. The doctoral gown is full flowing and has large bell-shaped sleeves. It is trimmed with velvet panels down the front and has velvet chevrons on the sleeves. The master's gown has a closed or glove sleeve that is open at the wrist. Both the master's gown and the doctoral gown may be worn either open or closed. The baccalaureate gown is the simplest in design. Usually black, it is distinguished by a wide yoke with shirring in the front and back and by open flowing sleeves that end in a point. The gown is worn closed.

The mortar board, or Oxford cap, is the headpiece usually worn at American universities. The mortar board is appropriately worn with the board flat on the top of the head.

Of the costume's three components, the hood is the most interesting. Originally it had three uses: as a head covering, as a shoulder cape, and as a bag in which alms could be collected. It is mentioned as early as 1480 in classical literature. When large wigs were in vogue in Britain, the cape part of the hood was split in front and a narrow neckband inserted. The color of the velvet trim on the hood designates the subject field of the degree; the width of the trim designates the level of the degree; and the lining, the colors of the university granting the degree.

BANNERS

The banners carried in the processional and recessional represent the university's schools.

COMMENCEMENT KEYNOTE SPEAKER AND HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

Doctor of Science, honoris causa

Jennifer Joy Freyd, PhD

Jennifer Joy Freyd, Professor Emerita of Psychology at the University of Oregon and an affiliate professor at the University of Washington, has spent her life asking tough questions about power, abuse, and institutions.

A renowned scholar known for her theories of betrayal trauma, institutional betrayal, and institutional courage, she is the author of the Harvard Press award-winning book Betrayal Trauma: The Logic of Forgetting Childhood Abuse and has written or co-written more than 200 scientific articles and op-eds. Freyd has consulted for the White House and members of Congress.

In 2020, she founded the Center for Institutional Courage, a nonprofit dedicated to research and education about institutional betrayal and how to counter it through institutional courage. “In essence, I want to know how people relate to the people and institutions they depend on,” she says. “I especially want to know how that dynamic is impacted by betrayal and courage.”

Both a scientist and public intellectual, Freyd has received acclaim for her scholarship and her courage. Her awards include being named a John Simon Guggenheim Fellow, an Erskine Fellow at the University of Canterbury, and a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. She is the 2024 recipient of the American Psychological Foundation’s Gold Medal Award for Impact in Psychology, given in recognition of her innovative and transformational work.

STUDENT SPEAKER

Jennifer P. Villalobos, PhD, 2024

Jennifer P. Villalobos is a program evaluator, organizational psychologist, scholar, and researcher who recently defended her PhD dissertation on “Exploring the Relationship Between Social Justice Evaluation and Psychological Capital.” She has a master’s degree in positive organizational psychology and evaluation from CGU and a bachelor’s degree in psychology and history from USC. Her primary academic interests focus on positive organizational interventions, transformative and social justice-oriented approaches to evaluation, and organizational initiatives focusing on Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI).

With more than 20 years of experience, she runs a consulting practice that engages local, national, and international organizations, spanning multiple industries, emphasizing workplace well-being, social justice, DEI, leadership, and evaluation capacity building.

She has been married to her best friend, Joshua, for more than 17 years and is a proud mamá to twin boy/girl 16-year-olds and a 14-year-old son. Her favorite hobbies are cheering on her kids in their extracurricular endeavors, attending sporting and music events, and traveling with her family. She is passionate about fairness and equity and strives to be a positive model for her children and the Latinx community. ¡Sí, se puede!

ALUMNI BOARD SPEAKER

Steven Kim, MBA, 2012; and MS, 2017

Steven Kim is the founder and principal consultant at Talentscope, an outsourced Hiring-HR Solution and organizational coaching firm that enables small and medium-sized businesses to achieve more of their potential and create a greater sense of fulfillment for both owners and their employees. He earned his Executive MBA in 2012 and MS in Advanced Management in 2017 from the Drucker School of Management and now serves as president of the CGU Alumni Association, of which he was a founding member. His calling is to help leaders of growing organizations to better focus on what matters by aligning their business with their purpose.

He believes that building a strong CGU alumni community starts with each of us fostering a vibrant, supportive network that extends beyond our years in academia. It's an opportunity to give back, share experiences, and stay connected with others who can offer guidance, opportunities, and camaraderie.

“For new graduates, there’s never a better time to get involved,” he says. “The longer you wait, the harder it becomes to stay connected, so make sure to stop by the CGU Alumni Association booth and provide your contact information to stay abreast of upcoming alumni events. Remember that your journey can also inspire and guide those who follow.”

NOTICES

As a matter of safety and to accommodate the procession and recession, please keep all aisles clear.

Professional Photography

Grad Images, a professional photography studio, will take individual photographs during the ceremony and will email the proofs to each graduate.

Candid Photographs

Candid photographs of the graduates may be taken before and after the ceremony. To keep our graduates and guests safe during the ceremony, the aisles must be kept clear at all times. Please take any photos during the ceremony from your seat. Do not approach the stage.

Video Options

A direct audiovisual feed of the ceremony is available on a screen in the air-conditioned Albrecht Auditorium, Stauffer Hall of Learning, on the west side of Dartmouth Avenue, south of 10th Street.

A live simulcast is available at cgu.zoom.us/j/87028540524

A recorded video of the ceremony and highlights of the day will be available at youtube.com/cgunews.

Share this special day on social media: #cgugrad
