Vision statement; Expanding and transforming the artistry of voice

Mission statement; We are an independent and innovative professional vocal ensemble that shares the traditional and evolving spectrum of choral music with the widest possible audience. We advance this art through performance, community education, collaboration, commissioning and recording.

Review from Torrevejea Target: Cultural Press (Antoni Jakubowski, music critic)
Chopin Piano Concerto No. 1 in E minor, Op. 11 performance with the Orquestra Sinfónica de Torrevejea conducted by José Francisco Sánchez in Spain:

“... Guest soloist Jenny Soonjin Kim dazzled the audience with her performance, conveying all these characteristics in an impressive and convincing way. Utilizing her technical skills, she at the same time impressed with a lot of musicality, sensitivity and poetic, thoughtful and romantic interpretation...”

Review from Michael Allhoff, owner of Costa Blanca Lebez; Chopin Piano Concerto No. 1 in E minor, Op. 11 performance with the Orquestra Sinfónica de Torrevejea conducted by José Francisco Sánchez in Spain:

“... With verve, dedication and precision, the piano soloist Jenny Soonjin Kim interpreted the Concerto No. 1 by Chopin...”

Review from Early Music America (EMA; Sylvia Berry) Leopold Kozeluch Recording:

“Jenny Soonjin Kim plays with an almost Baroque flair well-fitting of the music... The period treatment that Kim brings to the Koželuch sonatas gives them a crisp texture and very nearly tactile character... Kim's performance is commanding and authoritative. The sonics are superb... an inspired and inspiring collection.” (All About Jazz, reviewing volume 1)

‘Kim’s playing is crystalline and lyrical, with exquisitely sensitive phrasing. She is an assured virtuoso who interprets Koželuch’s music beautifully. This set will interest pianists who would like to augment their repertoire with unknown gems from the period.’ (Early Music America)

Johann Friedrich Doles Jr. Recording Review from Piano News (Germany, Marco Frei)

“She has a preference for the instrument. In any case Jenny Kim has already recorded the sonatas of Leopold Kozeluch on this Anton Walter replica by Michael Walker (Brilliant). The original instrument comes from 1795, one year before the death of Johann Friedrich Doles. Once again the instrument convinces with an unheard-of floating tonal quality in piano and a voluminous expression in forte, and Kim knows how to use this fascinating richness of color perfectly. This is revealed by a comparison of the 'Adagio con espressione' with the 'Scherzando prestissimo' from the Piano Sonata No. 1: you almost think you hear two completely different instruments. With this premiere recording Kim has taken an exemplary view, because it brings together the sound poetry and the gripping verve in a meaningful way." (Marco Frei, Piano News)

House Concert/ Studio Concert

This is a performance device that I began in 2016 and have kept going (until COVID-19) to allow my students the chance to perform for a sophisticated audience in preparation for one of their required recitals. It is held at the end of the academic year.

Beginning in 2017, I added a special musical bonus to the house concert. All CGU music students had an open invitation to come and perform if they wished. Often, I invited special guests from the LA Master Chorale, the Korean Traditional Singers and on one occasion UCI Professor Kojiro Umezaki (shakuhachi – Japanese flute) was invited to perform.

By Fall 2019 I expanded the house concerts to one per month as the students because the response of the students was very positive. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, performances were suspended for some time because of restrictions. However, concerts once again resumed in November of 2021 and have been modified to allow students to perform while safely social distancing. This new concert format was dubbed the "window concert" in which students perform inside a building for an outside audience to view through a window.
